Life has its challenges. Citi has resources to help.

The Be Well Program Just Got Better!

You and your household members now have access to up to five counseling sessions as well as help in finding resources!

Short-term Counseling Services

The personal challenges you face — both on the job and at home — can often lead to stress or disrupt your sense of well-being. Citi's Be Well Program can help. You and your household members can attend up to five face-to-face counseling sessions near your home or work at no cost to you. If you require additional help, your Be Well counselor will attempt to find a health care professional covered by your medical plan, if applicable.

Resource & Referral Services (formerly known as the Citi Work/Life Program)

Balancing work and life isn't always an easy task. The Resource & Referral Services extend a helping hand when you need it most. Be Well can address your everyday challenges while saving you and your household members time and money. Available online and by telephone, this confidential resource provides complimentary information and practical solutions, customized referrals and research.

Get started by calling Be Well for confidential support and assistance on a wide variety of issues and concerns, including:

- Relationship issues: general marital/partner concerns, conflict resolution, physical or emotional abuse
- Emotional well-being concerns: depression, stress and anxiety, grief and loss or addictions
- Resolve financial and legal concerns, such as budgeting, debt management, estate planning, identity theft and other issues
- Workplace challenges: communicating with your boss, dealing with organizational change and experiencing stress
- Manager resources: helping employees deal with change, building leadership and communication skills
- Locate reliable support services to find resources on a variety of topics, like childcare, adoption, eldercare, home repairs, pet care, vacation planning and much more
